High Traveling Monkeys Face Newsmen Today

By STANLEY MEISLER
WASHINGTON (AP) — America's two nonchalant space monkeys face their public today. Newsmen and photographers will stare and pop flash bulbs at Able and Baker at a news conference. Hams that they are, the monkeys should take it all in stride. The female monkeys, who survived a 1,500-mile trip into space Thursday, exhibited their ho-hum attitude Friday night when they arrived here.

While newsmen, photographers and military personnel watched them come off in a four-engine transport, the monkeys just played and munched food inside their metal cages.

Navy Lt. Thomas F. Hushyn, pilot of the transport, said their seeming indifference was just cover. He added that during flight, for example, Baker, the smaller of the two, played in the cockpit and posed for pictures at the controls.

"She's actually a ham," Hushyn said.

Before the public exhibition, the small monkeys underwent a more important scrutiny. Soon after their arrival, doctors began medical checkups to see how well the monkeys fared in their space trip in the nose cone of a Jupiter missile.

The doctors hoped to gain important clues toward maintaining the health of the human Mercury astronauts when they orbit around the earth as part of the U.S. space program.

The nose cone carrying the capsules with the monkeys was recovered near Antigua Island in the Atlantic Ocean after the Jupiter missile had been fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Following their medical checks and exhibition, the monkeys will return to their laboratories here to live in retirement.

Officers Try to Find Bank Robbery Loot

ADVANCE Mo. (AP) — Authorities patiently searched the home and yard of an admitted bank robber last night and located the missing loot in the Advanced, Mo., bank holdup — $13,088.

Highway Patrolman Jack Small found the money — in 10s and 20s in a zipper bag in a big dog den in the yard of Robert Lee Hager, 20, of Farmfelt Mo.

Lt. E. F. Dampf of the Patrol said authorities pieced together statements made by Hager and his two confederates and decided to search Hager's Farmfelt home.

Dampf also said that Hager, James A. Foy, 25, of Trenton, N.J., and Walter S. Nicholson, 23, of Livermore, Calif., had orally admitted taking part in the Wednesday robbery. All are soldiers.

In all, $17,841 was taken at gun point after Hager and Foy herded five bank employees into a vault. Over $4,000 was found in Hager's home.

Dampf quoted Hager as saying the three planned the holdup because they wanted to make "some easy money."

Nicholson was arrested 65 miles away in Cairo, Ill., by State Police who spotted a getaway car he was driving. In his pocket was a slip of paper with Hager's address on it. Police used this clue to help crack the case.

All three have been charged with bank robbery and assault with a dangerous and deadly weapon.

Special Presbyterian Service Sunday

A special feature of the Morning Worship Service at the First Presbyterian Church on Sunday will be a brief Commissioning and Consecrating Service for all the young people who plan to attend the conference this summer.

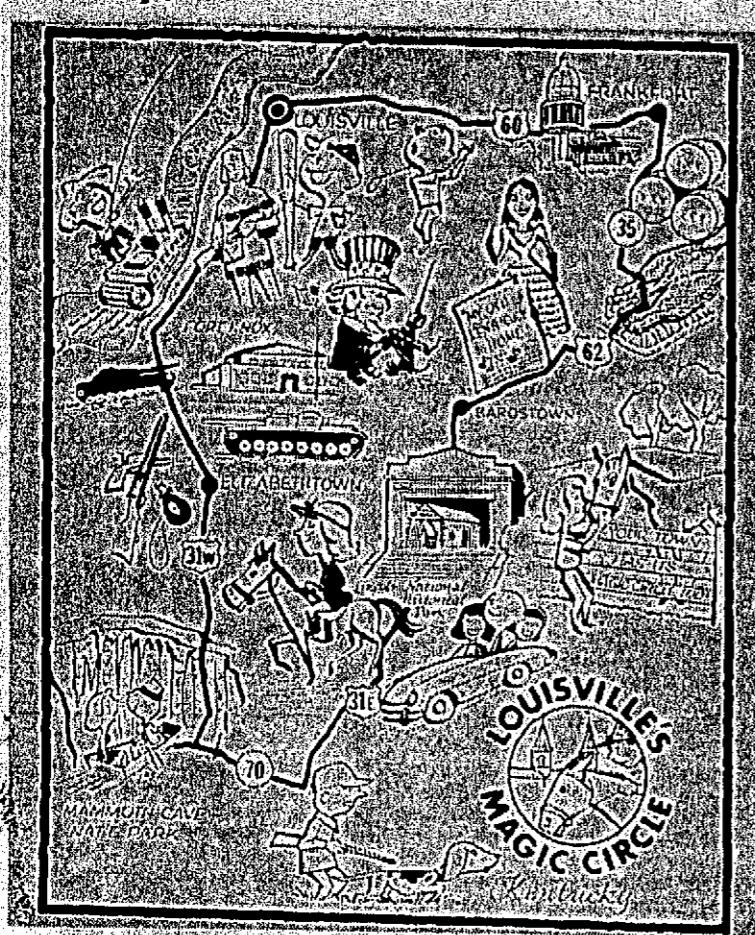

Seven Pioneers will leave Monday for the Pioneer Conference at Fernside. They will return Saturday and on that same day Senior High will begin their conference. The Ninth Grade Conference will be held June 22-26th. The Junior Camp will be held July 19-21st.

Kentucky Has More Than Derby, River and Boats

HOSPITABLE AND SPORTS-MINDED Louisville is the start of an exciting Magic Circle trip of the Blue Grass country. The young traveler's first demand is to see the world's largest bat factory and Daniel Boone's statue. South at Fort Knox where Uncle Sam keeps the nation's gold is the U. S. Armor Training Center where tanks on the road are common sight; Elizabethtown and General Custer's old home; Mammoth Cave National Park; Lincoln's birthplace cabin shrine; Bardstown where Stephen Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home"; tobacco land; and Frankfort, beautiful state capital city and famed for its bourbon distilleries and beautiful old homes.

Editor's Note: This is the 26th in a series of suggested highway tour maps which the Hope Star is publishing weekly. This is excellent material to cut out and fasten up in a scrap book for future reference when planning your vacation trip.

By EDWARD COLLIER
To most Americans the mention of Louisville conjures up visions of the Kentucky Derby, Kentucky colonels, golfing, leisurely living.

The jolt to reality is only a momentary one when the first-time visitor discovers a thriving, less city of commerce — but one where hospitality and courtesy are a daily way of life.

On the north Louisville is bounded by the Ohio, romantic river of commerce and pioneer day adventure. You can spend hours on the wharf or driving east on River Road, watching the water traffic. Something will seem wrong about the little stern-wheelers pushing huge barges up the river at a fast clip, then realization will dawn that no smoke is pouring from stacks as it did in the old wood boats. Today these sturdy old boats have been dieselized.

Handy Expressway We started our Magic Circle tour of Louisville by driving around the city's southern perimeter on the hairy, handsome Henry Watterson Expressway which feeds off via well planned parkways into the city's parks, golf clubs, museums, the tobacco and cigarette plants where visitors are welcome, Churchill Downs and the Kentucky Fair Grounds with its impressive new Freedom Hall which can hold 21,000.

Lincoln Helped Cupid Farmington's aura of romantic history is strong because it was here that Abraham Lincoln is credited with an assist to Cupid. During a six-weeks visit in 1841 with Joshua Speed, son of the builder, Lincoln kept the girl's son engaged with stories while Joshua and Fanny Henning slipped away to be married.

From Louisville the Magic Circle curves south (U. S. 31W) to Port Knox where Uncle Sam has stashed away the nation's gold. The guards shooed me away from taking a picture through the high picket iron fence of the two-story white stone building that squats over the vaults, so I had to be satisfied with a picture-postcard shot from the road.

In contrast to this not overly impressive structure is the vast and vital U. S. Armor Training Center which has been created out of the surrounding woodlands. Visitors are free to drive over most of the area and places for bathrooms of the future. For excitement there even is a secret stairway.

He completed his 30th year with the Atlanta Constitution this month.

He discussed the role of newspapers in the future. He said America's current population is about 173 million but by the year 2000 — only 41 years away — "We'll have a population of about 353 million. What will that mean to schools, churches, newspapers, and government, local and federal?"

"Newspapers can't be any better than the people who get them out. In fact, newspapers ARE the people who produce them. Something of the men and women who work on them gets into the paper, some of their mind, some of their personality, their faith, or lack of it, some of their compassion or apathy, some of their sensitiveness or brittle sophistication, some of their feelin for poetry and beauty — or lack of it," he said.

"This is why we say that a newspaper has a soul. It is a bit trite, that statement. But it is true.

The Atlanta editor admitted that "the faults of today's journalism are many," but added that "it is the best we've ever had from the standpoint of responsibility. I say that even though frequently in gorge rises over abuses of that."

Savage Red Banners When you first step into the museum you are struck by the savage red Nazi banners emblazoned with black swastikas, which hang at the two ends of the hall. The exhibits which attract the most attention are the big Nazi tanks which include the Mark V Panther. Many of the tanks and artillery carriers have steps constructed so that boys of all ages can climb into them for first-hand examination. In the wing containing field artillery pieces, Russian-made mortars and machine guns captured in Korea have been added.

The versatility of attractions offered the motorist in Kentucky has a high point at Mammoth Cave national Park. Once you reach the boundaries of the vast natural wooded area, and all sign boards, tree stands and carnival-type shops have disappeared, you are ready for the adventure into the heads of government.

Rescue Workers Seek to Save Trapped Miners

BEAVERS DAM, Ky. (AP) — Mechanized rescue workers were moving from three sides today toward three miners trapped in a coal mine. The men were unlit when some 450 feet of mine shaft caved in about 10 a.m. (CST) Friday.

The rescue workers were able to talk with the trapped men by telephone, and one of them said, "It looks like we could stay here a week if we had to."

Air was being piped to the three through a sprinkler system in the mine.

Trapped were Don McClemon of Pinhook, Ill.; Jake Lewis of Harlan, Ky., and Earl Bennett of Taylorville, Ill. All were continuous mining specialists employed at the Ken Coal Co., a subsidiary of the Peabody Coal Co.

The continuous miner cuts and loads coal in one operation.

One continuous miner was being used to cut a new shaft almost parallel to the one that caved in. In addition, the 75-rescue workers were cleaning debris from the old shaft and drilling perpendicularly toward the men.

Benton Dam Police Chief Virgil Stewart said the perpendicular shaft was being drilled in an effort to get food to the men.

Workers said they drilled some 250 feet in the first two and one-half hours of operation, but then had to slow down to prevent caving.

The place where the men were trapped is about 500 feet from the entrance and about 90 feet below ground. The shaft was driven horizontally into the wall of an abandoned strip coal mine.

The cause of the cave-in was unknown, but much rain has fallen in the area — about 100 miles southwest of Louisville — in the past few days.

Urges Papers to Remember True Purpose

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph McGill, winner of this year's Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing, said today that newspapers "must never forget they serve man — not a state."

It was just before dusk on our last day of sightseeing when we discovered Farmington, an architectural treasure of which few Louisville citizens are aware. A narrow, prim tree-lined driveway leads up from busy Bardstown Road to a knoll where this house, designed by Thomas Jefferson, still sits with graceful dignity.

Much of the pleasure in visiting Farmington is that here you can see a structure in process of restoration. Modern concepts so lacking in houses designed by other architects of that day are evident, on every hand: panel ventilators, folding doors, swinging hangers in clothes closets, amazing deep and handy storage cupboards in every room, a dumb waiter and places for bathrooms of the future. For excitement there even is a secret stairway.

Graduation Thursday Brings Back Memories Which Have Been Enjoyed by 75 Classes

BY MARY ANITA LASETER

NIGHT before last, Hope High School was the scene of Commencement Exercises for the graduating class of 1959. As a result of political pressure,

Monticello businessmen will present a gift to Thompson. Other gifts will be made to Wills' Leslie, Spencer Holt and Troy Bledsoe, three members of the A&M coaching staff who resigned recently.

The observance was arranged in honor of Thompson's 11 years as president of Arkansas A&M College and is not officially linked to reports he will resign soon as a result of political pressure.

Monticello businessmen will present a gift to Thompson. Other gifts will be made to Wills' Leslie, Spencer Holt and Troy Bledsoe, three members of the A&M coaching staff who resigned recently.

Where did H. H. S. "commence" and when?

Exactly 75 years ago, in 1884, the first high school in our town was built at East Avenue and North Main. It was a red frame, two-story structure located on the site of the present Oglesby School. Until 1922 it remained Hope High School, housing six classrooms, a small storeroom, and two offices.

On the grounds the boys had built a small one-room house in which they stored athletic equipment.

Pointing most of his remarks to Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), his most outspoken critic, Johnson said tartly, "It does not take much courage, I may say, to make the leadership a punching bag."

The debate on interest rates was touched off by Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.), who said Democrats had failed to fulfill a campaign promise to control rising interest rates.

Proxmire, who several times this session has criticized the leadership of Johnson, called Gore's remarks tremendously useful. He had told the Senate before Proxmire recalled, that its Democrats had failed to work out a party policy on major issues.

Johnson said that Gore was on the Finance Committee and Proxmire on the Banking Committee, and neither committee had come forward with a proposal on interest rates.

"I don't think a senator who can't get a majority on his committee ought to tell some other senator he ought to deliver a majority to him wrapped up in a blue ribbon," Johnson said.

"Usually," he continued, "when a senator wants something done or does not want something done, and does not get his way, he puts the blame on the leadership."

5th Person Jailed in Diamond Theft

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) — The FBI announced today the arrest of a fifth person in the theft of the glittering 33 carat Krupp diamond.

Edward Daniel May, 39, was arrested last night at Texas City, Tex., where he was working as a painter.

The FBI office here said May was charged with conspiring to violate the law concerning interstate transportation of stolen property.

Bandits stole the $50,000 ring from Mrs. Vera Krupp April 10 at her ranch near Las Vegas, Nev. Mrs. Krupp is the ex-wife of German industrialist Alfred Krupp.

Four other persons have been arrested in the theft.

Three were nabbed in New Jersey last week. James Reeves and his wife of Hot Springs, Ark., were seized in an Elizabeth motel on charges of possession of the jewel. Julius Berger, 43, a North Bergen grocer, was picked up on a similar charge.

diligently and realized their goal of having an athletic field in 1938. In 1950 a new band building was erected and the next year saw the construction of a new junior high school building just north of senior high school.

The most recent addition to the school plant, which was once "way out on Main Street in an old corn field that isn't even in the city limits," was the erection of a Field House in 1957.

In the words of Miss Beryl Henry of Benton, a former teacher, principal and superintendent in the Hope schools, "Time has certainly justified the 'extravagance' of the School Board consisting of Dr. Don Smith, President; Theo P. Witt, Secretary; Robert Wilson; Charles Harrell; Floyd Moses; C. P. Routon and J. R. Floyd. It turned out to be keen foresight and wisdom since the growth of school plants has been both gratifying and challenging."

DOROTHY DIX

Even "Mature" Teen-Ager
Needs Extra Experience

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 16 years old and very mature for my few years. I grew up surrounded by adults, went to private schools, had tutors most of my life (because of poor health) and all in all, I've missed a lot of things other kids my age have had. My parents are very active socially, and I rarely see them except at breakfast.

Now I've fallen in love with a man 17 years old. My parents don't have much interest in my activities and when I tried to tell them about this man, they simply shrugged it off and told me to use my own judgment about him. In view of my background and maturity, don't you think it would be all right for me to marry him? I love him very much. — Y. S.

Dear Y. S.: You may think you're mature for your age because you've been on your own a lot but actually you lack so much experience of people that you are young for your years. Catch up with other 16-year-olds! It doesn't seem possible that your parents are as uninterested as you imply but if they are get guidance from some other adult—a teacher, minister, social worker at church or a relative. Look up a camp that will take your friend into consideration and get yourself enrolled for the summer. You'll have to work fast as time is running out. A few months' association with girls your own age should help bring you to the proper level. In the fall, you should go away to a good school.

You don't lack education; you've got a very good letter! But, certainly you need more before you tackle the problem of marriage. If you'll write again giving your name and address, I can offer further recommendations.

Dear Dorothy Dix: There are quite a few single girls and women who take the 6:30 bus at our corner every morning. Consequently, Jumpy, the driver, calls it the "Old Maid Special." In this day and age, and still such things as old maids and, if so, at what age does a woman become one? — Curious Passenger

Dear C. P.: Jumpy is just having his little joke. The term "Old Maid" has disappeared from our language and exists today only in the card game bearing the name, which is still popular with children. I don't think Jumpy would kid you girls if he didn't have a sincere affection for you.

so take his joke in the same spirit.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Do you believe that a girl who keeps her boy friend's car is giving him privileges? She has been going steady for a year and plans to be married soon. Her parents won't let her keep the car so it is idle most of the time. Do you think neighbors would gossip over the situation? — M.C.

Dear M.C.: If a boy can't use his car all the time and permits his girl friend to drive it, I can't see where it follows that she's granting "privileges." Nor do I see where there's any basis for gossip.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper.

Six Making History at Annapolis

ANNAPOLES, Md. (AP) — An admiral's son who doesn't like the water and five other misfits are making naval history by becoming officers in the U.S. Army.

They'll make the switch immediately after graduation from the academy next week. It's by choice. And although they give a variety

When Khrushchev made his demands, he also indicated he was willing to back them up by a showdown with the West.

The West could have said, "All right, mister, show your muscle. You want trouble? Start it. We're not budging and we're not going to discuss it. We're in Berlin and we stay there."

Instead, to avoid the showdown, the Western Allies agonized themselves for months on how to find some peaceful solution to the challenge Khrushchev raised. They finally proposed the Geneva conference to discuss Berlin and other things.

In the end, the Big Four may reach some minor agreement on Berlin, with the West making some

FOUR WHOOPS AND A HOLLER

SIMPLE SPRING TUNE-UP
SPEEDS UP FAMILY BOAT
BY WH. TAYLOR MCKEOWN
Distributed by NEA Service

How can you make your family boat go faster?

Simply, by studying its present performance says an experienced boat skipper. Boats should receive a spring speed-up tune-up much the way your family car does — that's his contention — and with a little care you can do it at no expense.

The outboard boat owner will find do-it-yourself tuning-up easiest, although inboard and sailboat skippers will also benefit from recheck of their boat's operation at this time of year.

First make sure the boat provides a level ride. Does the bow point up in the air and the stern squat down in the water? Driver and passengers may be sitting too far back; experiment with weight forward. Perhaps you should install a remote steering wheel near the bows to improve balance.

Observe models similar to yours using the same amount of power and note if they give a faster and smoother ride.

Does the bow of the runabout dig in on turns and do you have trouble getting up on plane so that you can skim over the surface of the water? Perhaps your passengers and gear are too far forward. A light boat which provides a level ride has to push less water and goes faster.

Next, check your outboard motor to be sure that the drive shaft is at right angles to the water when the boat is under way. If the propeller shaft is tilted in to near the transom, the motor will try to submerge the bow, with much angle and the motor slanted out away from the boat, the propeller tends to force the stern down and up corners the bow.

Outboard motors have till adjustments to allow you to correct problems.

Let someone drive your boat at speed while you watch and see if it is giving a level ride. This can be useful with bigger inboard powered craft and sailboats as well.

Does the boat tend to "porpoise," lifting the bow from the water and then dropping back over and over like a seesaw?

Proper weight distribution, motor angle and speed selection can help correct this.

Try raising or lowering the outboard motor slightly on the transom until you find the spot where you get the most speed underway without the propeller coming out of the water and over-speeding cavitation, the experts call it.

Every outboard hull that is designed for planing will have one position where the motor runs just deep enough in the water for maximum performance. Here even one-eighth of an inch in height where the motor is clamped can make a great difference. Racing drivers make additional adjustments according to whether the water is rough or smooth.

Small changes in the trim of your boat and weight distribution make it possible for you to get better speed and enjoyment from the boat, and go farther on the same amount of gas.

Upurge in Traffic Fatalities Expected

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Police expect an upsurge in Arkansas traffic fatalities during the Memorial Day weekend.

Capt. Jack Rhea, chief of the safety division, said troopers had been instructed to be "extra diligent" but no additional men would be called out to patrol roads.

"We're hoping people will drive carefully," Rhea said.

The National Safety Council estimates traffic mishaps may cause 200 deaths and 10,000 disabling injuries during the holiday weekend starting at 6 p.m. today and ending at midnight Sunday.

Rhea pointed out that a nationwide "Slow Down and Live" traffic safety program begins tomorrow and will run through Labor Day.

Journey To Love

By VIRGINIA NIELSON

(C) 1959 by Virginia Nielsen Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Kathie Ebberts believes someone has attempted to steal a yellowed deed to some Hawaiian property which she is carrying to Hawaii to investigate the worth of the deed.

Kathie and Alex paused at the rail, looking down. The water looked black and oily and not at all like the picture she had in her mind.

"Wait until we're nearer the islands," Alex said, as though answering her unspoken thought.

"You've never seen such beauty, Kathie. Indigo, it is. And flying fish."

The horizon was invisible now, lost in the blackness of night and clouds and water. But the moon seemed to dip down and down and down toward the rail of the ship and then spring high into the murky heavens again as the rail leaned down to meet the water.

Kathie shivered. "It will be warmer, too, won't it?"

"Oh, much."

"Hot?" she queried.

"Oh, perhaps you'll find it hot on the beach some days. But on the mauka side..."

"Mauka!" Kathie repeated, abruptly facing him. "What does that mean?" For she had recognized the word. It was used in her dream!

"On the mountain side," Alex smiled at her, and his eyes seemed to come wonderfully alive, as they had once before. Kathie stared at him, feeling her breath catch in her throat. Unconsciously she moved a little away from him.

"The Hawaiians don't say north or south," he explained. "They say 'toward the mountains.' Or 'toward the sea'."

Kathie repeated softly, "Toward the mountains."

Alex put his hand under Kathie's elbow. "Let's go up to the boat deck."

The boat deck was nearly deserted. They stood by the rail and let the wind whip through their hair. The water was far away and it seemed as if they were riding the clouds.

Her face was raised to him, intent and sober. He started to sing softly.

Alex, looking down at her, found his voice dying away in his throat. Kathie caught her breath in a startled gasp as he pulled her into his arms.

It was just a kiss, she told herself urgently. Just a kiss that she had not foreseen and could not prevent. Then why was her blood pounding in her ears, and why did her lips quiver as though no man had ever touched them before?

"Kathie!" Alex said, releasing her, yet still holding her within the circle of his arms. "Kathie—"

Her name on his lips sounded like a caress. It seemed he could say nothing else.

"Alex," she protested. "You shouldn't — you mustn't —"

She pulled away from him, and when he saw how genuinely troubled she was, he let her go.

When she finally slept, it was with the lamp still burning above her head.

She slept late the next morning, and after she had showered and dressed, the breakfast hours were almost over. It did not matter.

Kathie told herself. She had more important business than breakfast.

She had decided to take Alex's advice about putting her valuables in safekeeping without further delay.

"With the purse containing the deed clutched tightly under her arm, she stepped out into the passageway.

He walked beside her along the deserted upper deck, and his nearness was almost as disturbing as his kiss had been. Kathie, leaning, was thinking of many things — of her tumbled clothes in the brand-new luggage, of the "wink" Alex had given Leilani when he took Kathie away from the cocktail party just before sailing time, of the gushing way Leilani's mother had claimed kinship.

"You weren't sick, were you?"

She shook her head.

"That's good. It got pretty rough during the night, you know. Not many of us had an appetite for breakfast this morning."

"I did most of my sleeping this morning," Kathie confessed.

"You weren't sick, were you?"

She shook her head.

She shook her head.

"That's good. It got pretty rough during the night, you know. Not many of us had an appetite for breakfast this morning."

"I did most of my sleeping this morning," Kathie confessed.

"You weren't sick, were you?"

She shook her head.

MY MOTHER'S BEEN AT ME TO LOSE WEIGHT BUT I CAN'T MAKE UP MY MIND WHETHER TO QUIT EATING OR GET MORE EXERCISE!

WELL, THEY SAY A COMBINATION OF THE TWO IS THE BEST WAY TO GO AT IT.

HE WAS TOO WEAK TO EXERCISE, SO IF HE'D START WITH THE EXERCISE, HE'D HAVE A CANDY BAR IN HIS HAND TO HELP HIM GET THROUGH IT.

NOT THAT IT WON'T WORK WITH HIM, IF HE'D GONE DIETING FIRST, HE'D PROBABLY FIGURE HE WAS TOO WEAK TO EXERCISE, AN IF HE'D START WITH THE EXERCISE, HE'D HAVE A CANDY BAR IN HIS HAND TO HELP HIM GET THROUGH IT.

CORNWALLIS LOOKS BETTER THAN EVER, HE COULDN'T HAVE BEEN EATING OFF THAT HOOPLE MENU... HA-HA, BUT IT'S A GOOD THING HE'S FIT... LANNER CRUM, WELL WAS READY TO SUE THE KENNEL IF THE MUTT HAD LOST ANY WEIGHT AS LONG AS EVERYTHING'S JAKE, HERE'S YOUR CUT OF THE DOG'S BOARD MONEY!

In Memoriam

They have not died in vain...those who paid with their lives the last full measure. Today, Memorial Day, is the day to remember Lexington, Gettysburg, Santiago Bay, Chateau Thierry, Coral Sea, Okinawa, Palermo, Normandy and Korea. We need only to look at the cemeteries of the world to realize the supreme sacrifice that was called for, that we might be secure. It called for the giving of life itself for many a man; for untold sorrow and heartache for friends and loved ones. As they bravely died, so we must bravely live. God has a destiny for us, for America, and only eyes of faith can read that destiny. Each drop of blood spilled from Bunker Hill to Iwo Jima, is a deposit in the bank of our country. One hundred sixty-five million Americans can do no less than dedicate ourselves anew. With our Alabaster Ointment of thankfulness, let us nobly remember those who laid themselves between our country and her foes. This is Memorial Day.
